

Identity Evropa national 'Fireside Chat' (via Discord)
February 27, 2019

RUSH TRANSCRIPT:

Patrick Casey: [00:00:00] All right. Well let's try that again. Good evening everyone. I hope you're doing well. I have my good mike plugged in so you guys hear me hopefully...better quality than before. But anyways thank you for coming to this week's fireside chat. So I'm going to say this is the last fireside chat before the conference. But we will have more. So it's the second to last Fireside chat before CPAC which is not nearly as exciting but I guess that's because that's something. So we begin with the whitepill of the week. As usual we have a few of them. We have all of this new merch that is starting to arrive. Fantastic. Looking forward to showing it to you at the conference. We've got some stuff that you've seen before lapel pins. We've got some new shirt designs and so forth sort of be pretty cool when it comes to other whitepills, let's see. So I was sent a story about this, this is kind of a smaller thing but it was it was you know definitely bigger, kind of big in the news cycle.

Patrick Casey: [00:01:04] A woman assaulted this guy wearing a MAGA hat at some restaurant and apparently she was she was here illegally. So it looks like she's gonna be deported. Think ICE took her into custody which is pretty funny. [12.4] Other than that you know that I'll confess I've been so busy planning for the conference and I haven't been keeping up with the news quite as much. I don't know what exactly. I don't think there's anything like terribly white pilling out at this point in time. Maybe I'm missing something here. But the point is is that I think we're kind of I think quite a bit is going to happen in the next six months. But this past week wasn't terribly eventful. Right we had the Cohen testimony and so forth and that was obviously. You know, in this you know the Trump said that black people aren't smart enough to vote for him.

Patrick Casey: [00:02:02] Obviously that's not true at all. But yeah nothing terribly interesting going on at this point. So thank you Phil, that is a good white pill. So we have, last year we had including speakers about one hundred and fifty people registered for Leading Our People Forward (LOPF). This year we have about 190. And that's great and I think we still have funds left...I don't know how many. Thank you to everyone who donated. Due to the donations that you guys gave to the organization or LOPF sponsorship fund. We were able to get I think at least 10 to 15 more people out there, if not more. I think we do have some more funds available, so if the financial issue, it's financial restraint that is your constraint rather than it's holding you back from attending the conference please reach out to us. We'll see what we can do.

Patrick Casey: [00:02:50] Uh I want everyone who wants to and can attend to make it and that should be the case every year, that should be the case every year. I'm willing to contribute a little bit more out of my own pockets if necessary, because this is going to be a fantastic event. Great speakers. We've got great presentations. Honestly just hanging out with everyone is probably the best part. And if you were not at the one last year you don't know how awesome it is to be around 200 people who are, you know, basically 200 people who are of like mind, the same organization you know the same people you know. You really feel like you're part of a tribe, part of a network, and that's because you are. You know Mr [Jared] Taylor, I didn't [00:03:31] hear this 'till recently, but apparently Mr Taylor told someone that our first conference was the best conference he ever attended. [6.4]

Patrick Casey: [00:03:38] This guy's been throwing great events, phenomenal events for decades, but you know some of the other conferences you go to, maybe it's a little bit of an older crowd and there's nothing wrong with that. But you know just you want to when you're talking about a movement you want to have the youth, if you want to have that energy, show that you're bringing in the new generations. So if you to register for the conference please do it. If you would like to donate to the LOFP sponsorship fund its still accepting donations. If you need sponsorship please reach out to Matt by the way guys. Be sure to thank Matt in the meantime and at the actual conference. He's taking the lead on everything here. His event planning skills are exquisite. And I have confidence that this event is going to be even better than last year and he really knocked it out last year. So thank you Matt. He plans that our first event which Mr. Taylor felt was the best event of his life, twenty one years old, twenty one years old, already planning phenomenal national events. We've got the best people and by that I don't mean that people outside of IE are inferior, it's just that people in IE are so amazing and I'm talking about you guys, all of your definitely.

Patrick Casey: [00:04:48] So let's talk about the activism roundup now. We haven't done too much activism because, because you know we have the conference coming up and that's kind of our main focus. Let me open up our Minds account, I believe that's what we're posting things now.

Patrick Casey: [00:05:07] So a lot of flyering as usual. Thank you all for. Thank you everyone who continues to go out put up stickers and flyer. It's the bread and butter of our activism. Don't let anyone tell you that it doesn't work, because anyone who's actually looked at these applications that people fill out, join our organization, can easily discern that people are seeing these online and in person, They [think] hey there are people of like mind in my area. I'm going to fill out an application so that is that is why it's important for us to keep doing this.

Patrick Casey: [00:05:34] There was a fantastic action that took place in Oklahoma City. So Tamara Paulson was this nice old white woman who was killed by an illegal alien. I think she was ... And I think he was drunk driving. I'm not terribly educated on all of the fine details here. But anyways our guys went out there led by Conway our Oklahoma coordinator to erect this sign at the site of her murder and we were accosted by an obese Mexican woman who was calling them white trash and you know as we all know we will never be as classy as as these people streaming across the border. That's why we're so grateful for them enriching us with their advanced culture. But in all seriousness this was a great action and picked up a lot of local media coverage.

Patrick Casey: [00:06:25] And I want you guys to be on the lookout for similar events, similar injustices that happened to our people. I want you to do similar things. We've got a great graphic design team. By that I basically just mean Sean and we want other people's graphic design skills but he's just so good, works so fast, so diligent, that he basically does all of the graphic design at this point and for that we are absolutely grateful.

Patrick Casey: [00:06:45] So yeah that was a fantastic action and you know when you do these actions -- the people in public are so upset about these these senseless murders from illegal aliens, there's not a lot of public support outside of illegal alien community maybe the far left, for these illegal aliens who go out and do this stuff. So yeah it makes us look really good.

Patrick Casey: [00:07:10] You know if you guys you guys have been around for the uhh you guys you've been around for a while, who remember the Justine Demont Memorial. You guys should remember that if you look at the top comments on all of these articles that were done on that memorial. This was in the Guardian, BBC, Fox News got a ton of coverage, all of the top comments, virtually all of the top comments were people taking issue with the fact that our tasteful and sincere memorial was being referred to as a hate [00:07:43] shrine. People saying I don't know what Indentity Evropa is about but this seems like a nice gesture. Like one guy even said if they're a hate group I guess I support hate groups now. [7.7] So maybe not the exact rhetoric and objects that that's that we're going for here. But yeah that's that's just goes to show that's how you win people over.

Patrick Casey: [00:08:08] This is how you hop on these issues and when the establishment says that we're bad for taking issue with these injustices it kind of makes other people call into question how much legitimacy the establishment has. So a very concerning establishment has zero legitimacy. So that's why you're able to spread that message and convince people to see things the same way we see things then.

Patrick Casey: [00:08:31] Since the point of activism isn't it..if Based Alaska says "hey Patrick you see that sick banner drop in Utah. I did. I remember it happening a few weeks ago though I am in a very concerned manner and I'm scrolling through Minds [app] to see if I missed a recent banner drop in. Oh yeah. The activism is real hard to do I'll have to do the left wing activism roundups. You know I just of feel bad for these people, they're out there, they're trying and it's it's really comical you guys the students for so, check general chat if you have it...that Is from an article that's in media on IE. So this was a banner drop that was done against us says expel Nazis. I think because I think the Z is is the wrong way. So that's that's something they should fix. I was done it was done by the University of Utah campus, which is where most of our, much of our activism out in Utah has been centered around. This drop was done by these Students for a Democratic Society. They seem like a left wing. I don't know if they're actually socialists or they're just like really liberal, but they're they're left wing student group that's been around since the 60s. They've been around longer than most of us have been alive and they don't have any you know received wisdom from the earlier generations as to how to make a banner. That's just the sign that they suck. It's really that simple.

Patrick Casey: [00:10:00] Fifty years from now I can assure you that people in this organization will be making, just banners that people, it will be like fine art, people will be trying to buy them off of us for millions of dollars because they look that good. [13.5] But then you have these guys out there and this is this is just embarrassing. But they know it sucks to suck, as the saying goes and as long as their banner drops look worse than ours, you know they make themselves look bad and make us look good. Right. Makes them look like slobs and they are beyond that...that Is our activism round up for the week. Thank you everyone. If you have a brilliant idea for activism. Good. But wait until the -- after the conference, because we just have so much going on, the activism team is working on the action that we are going to be doing the Sunday of the conference, which I hope to see all of you at. It is just given how many people we have out there I want to get a least 100 people out to this action on Sunday. The more people that are out there, the less likely that there is of a doxx.

Patrick Casey: [00:11:02] Right. So how it goes and how it goes. Social media posts where there's one person the people in the antifa in that region or more often. Sometimes sometimes they will tweet out that person say "identify this guy". When we post a picture of a hundred people showing their faces out in public, antifa says ok, these people are like they don't ... [00:11:25] no one tries to find out where I live. No one tries to find back when I was using the Reinhard Wolff alias, there wasn't some huge campaign "expose Reinhard Wolff". Now if I had let -- left the paper trail, sure they would have loved to, but more open you are, the more you say here I am. [17.7] You know we're out here right the less likely antifa is going to be to try to go after you. Now that doesn't mean that they won't. A lot of it's very circumstantial contextual. But this action, guys, you want to participate in. And for those of you who are in the LOPF Slack server, please RSVP for the action in the appropriate channel if you haven't already. I'm going to be shilling for the action very hard. The upcoming weeks particularly the Friday and Saturday of the action, ah sorry of the weekend. And that is to ensure that we get enough people out there to make this action fantastic, it will be the biggest national gathering of our people all year. So we want to make want to make sure that the action is comparably large.

Patrick Casey: [00:12:34] So moving along if you live in driving distance from CPAC I would encourage you to come to CPAC. We're [6.6] going to be doing a dinner on Friday night so you can get in touch with Matt i you want RSVP for that. Please don't RSVP for the dinner in particular unless you are 100 percent because we have made a reservation and you don't want a bunch of people bailing out or showing up after not RSVPing and so forth. But you know we're going to have people in the area basically from Thursday to Saturday. And I've set up a server so we can kind of coordinate and a lot of you guys are going out there with your [00:13:11] College Republicans' groups. You know you don't have to be seen with me in public. I have reserved a fairly spacious room at the Gaylord and that is going to be the place where we're going to....I'm Not going to say too much but we are going to be basically maybe hosting a parallel event after the main event. [20.0] I think I can say that as much now. And by that I mean after the main event gets out keep this in [00:13:38] here though, inviting people back to you and inviting the general attendees, may be handing out flyers, word of mouth, to a presentation at the suite on location from the in...perhaps A few other names you'd know, about why the people in CPAC are wrong, about why they're controlled opposition, why they're grifters, why they're wrong about identity politics, and look to have it livestreamed. [23.9] I think if I can get some journalists up there and so long as they agree not to take any [00:14:07] pictures and just report on it as is, which they generally agree to do, I think we can have a good chance of upstaging CPAC quite a bit. [9.6]

Patrick Casey: [00:14:19] We've learned from the White House visit that I can go to a place and do a thing that if you know someone who doesn't have my views did no one would care about right. Pat Casey without this job, without these political views. Going to the White House is would 20 likes on my personal Facebook, that I don't have. But given that I have views that are deemed controversial and volatile by this corrupt establishment, by the powers that be whenever I go and do something remotely political, depending on the context, it's like "oh no he's like the villian, he's out there, and he's taking a White House tour. You know was he was he invited? Let's get to the bottom of it". There are still people that are saying that I was invited there by the Trump administration, which I mean I did push back on that and you know no one can actually seriously use that against the Trump administration because it's so demonstrably false right. We had Jonathan Gleenblatt (ADL) walking back, which was pretty pretty amazing to see. But The point being with all of this is that I think that we could you know you could have all of these journalists there who are just going to be kind of bored and it's like oh Candice Owen is talking about, you know, but journalists like to cover us for a reason. Now they do have an ideological bone to pick...quite often an agenda to push. But you know this is something that sells right? Controversial right wingers who are turning, you know, CPAC attendees against CPAC. That's a pretty great narrative.

Patrick Casey: [00:15:50] But again this does require a bit of secrecy so I please don't, you know, please don't go talking about it on social media. Don't do that. Don't talk to people outside of IE about that [13.1] but if you want to come and participate in all of this I love to have you, it's going to be a good time. You know I don't know how many people they can sleep in the venue. There is a large really nice king sized bed looks and looks too good to share. Sorry but we you might have some couch space available but anyways that is what's going on this weekend. Again we're going to have stuff going on you know Friday night, dinner, that stuff the actual CPAC. I think we might do some stuff Saturdays too. We'll see. But anyways message me if you want an invite to the server.

Patrick Casey: [00:16:45] Moving along, moving along, I would like to remind you all that this organization cannot function without dues. Dues are fairly modest, ten dollars a month is not that much if you're working or even going to school and have financial aid I don't know. Hopefully not sending your student loans on on identitarianism. But if that's how you pay your dues I don't touch. The point is is that I need you guys keeping up to date on your dues. You guys need to do us until we get a system going that is automated and what that basically is going to mean eventually it's just you're going to get dropped after you stop paying. So maybe that kind of system is it isn't really what you want. What we have right now is nicer. We're never going to drop people after they become like you know it's all these you know, he's 24 hours late on dues, time to axe him from the organization. We normally give people a few months, I think more than two months, unless they've, unless you guys have given me a specific reason why you need some extra time to pay your dues is probably enough time. The point is is up until you know until we get that kind of system in place. Please help out by paying your dues on time. You can do it through Zelle [a payment gateway]. You can do it through the P.O. Box. Both of those are available in the organization Discord channel on this server. If you don't know when your dues expire you should know that. Set a reminder on your phone and whatever you do please don't be the guy who pays monthly and forgets every month if you pay every six months and you have to get reminded every six months that's not the end of the world. But if it's you know if you're monthly every month like something's nothing's not working so set a reminder on your phone and I'm looking at you or pointing at the voice channel here what are your names. You don't know when your dues are, when your dues expire then make sure we go to members.identityeuropa.com. Login, you all should all have the ability to do that and then you want to go to my information and then my info.

Patrick Casey: [00:18:48] So that is us and that on the news front I'd like to remind you guys that the you are expected to adhere to the guidelines outlined in the guidebook of the three most important documents are the three most recent one. "How we Poster" you need read through that before you put up a single poster or sticker membership guidelines you should have all have read that by now. If you went through the pledge process you had it. You had me read it to you. Following that I asked you to read it to yourself before you became a full member. [00:19:20] Then "How not to get doxxed" written by our wonderful and talented server admin. [5.7] I need you guys to know how to skillfully interact with dissident politics. If you go up and you start putting stickers on you know the LGBT center of a private university you're going to get in legal trouble. I will not be able to do much right. We might be able to raise a legal defense fundraiser for you. [I don't want] to leave people hanging but I'd rather prevent that rather prevent that from happening. So don't put a single poster flyer unless you've read "how we poster". Go back and read through it too. I think I could do with it. In fact I learned that one of the last times I went out to flyer that I was I was in the wrong. Mac corrected me and I put a sticker on top of a trash can. I was reminded that that was not proper, I was rebuked. I was reminded that was not proper protocol so if I can forget all of you can forget it. Please make sure to touch up on these,.

Patrick Casey: [00:20:21] Now server rules; these are important as well. You haven't read through them from start to finish to do that. I understand that some you know virtually every other dissident right space on the Internet, Gab to your Twitter account to some forum to 4chan also you know your epic gaming discord server right.. is your able to basically say whatever you want. Maybe there's something you wouldn't say for obvious legal reasons and that's part of it. But guys, not only is it important for you to abide by the server rules in this server but it's also important that you understand why we're doing this. This isn't just putting this isn't just you know we're not trying to prevent you from having fun. If that if a little of that happens on Discord as a result of these rules well too bad. We need to ensure that we have our bases covered before all else before before you know worrying about having fun.

Patrick Casey: [00:21:16] So the illegal activities thing is something we take very seriously. Don't even joke about it. There are lots of things that you just shouldn't joke about on the server to joking about well we should do x to x group of people.. Don't do it. Don't joke about doing like really extreme or inhumane things to white people to non-white people it's just not the [00:21:35] place. Basically our philosophy here is that if an infiltrator gets in and starts screen capping things on our server we don't want that person to get something that could be blown out of proportion right. Because it all it takes is one screenshot. Next thing you know there's a Washington Post article right if someone jokes about a race war or something even regardless of how ironic that person is being. That's going to you know Identity Evropa plans for race war and then you know all of these other outlets pick it up and then it goes in an SPLC file and Wikipedia..guys...it's really that easy. It's really that easy and you don't want to give them any ammunition. You don't want to give them any rope to hang us with. [41.4]

Patrick Casey: [00:22:16] And that is why the rule number one is the most important.

Patrick Casey: [00:22:20] Other than that we just don't ... you know...stuff it's really divisive. Obviously some disagreements OK. But it will be obvious when people were getting flustered taking things personally. This isn't the place for that. I would argue that getting that upset over an argument over history or something is I know people who've had personal falling out and ended friendships over disagreements on some obscure historical or philosophical fact. That's Totally autistic, not a good thing to take on.

Patrick Casey: [00:22:50] Same thing applies to National Socialism...discussing weapons right. These are just things we can't have on our server. So well because I understand that most of you do because understand that if a moderator or your coordinator is intervening to tell you that you're not operating in the right way just be really respectful, be really respectful. Your coordinator they should be respectful too. If you feel that they've been rude to you and you can let me know because I tell the coordinators moderators, be nice to people you're telling them if they're doing something wrong don't say, "Hey idiot you know don't screw this up again." You say, "hey you know what. Oh you're new, welcome to the organization," but please please don't do this again in the future this is why not now. Right now we want people to be nice because being nice is really important. It is really integral to getting people to not hate each other. I've seen so many organizations and relationships fall apart because people interact in a way that is conducive to friendship, to camaraderie and so forth. So we don't want there to be bad blood. We don't want it to be mean spirited and so forth.

Patrick Casey: [00:23:52] But you got to like, you know you start start talking back to the moderators and you know especially if they're being nice and you know it's just going to tell me that you're not interested in following the [00:24:02] rules. I don't think our rules are too extreme. So bear in mind that this stuff applies to other servers as well. This applies to every official IE server. [8.6] If you make it a server and invite IE people to it that's not an official IE server. [00:24:15] So I mean you can kind of do whatever you want there. If I see like someone tells me you're doing something like really extreme and outlandish that might be an issue but I don't like to wade into the waters of censoring shitposting on non-IE servers. [15.3] So if you're shitposting on a non IE server get so out of hand that I have to hear about it then that's a problem. [00:24:37] I don't want to hear about it. [0.3] Beyond that, one on that one thing to keep in mind here and this is just about Discord service, this is in general.

Patrick Casey: [00:24:50] So I understand a lot of people come to the dissident right because they've been exploring obscure, esoteric and outlandish ideas and then there's nothing wrong with that. I mean we all arrived here because we were willing to question things that everyone else believed to be true, right? There's a lot to be said for the intellectual honesty and integrity of being so inquisitive that you're willing to go against the grain and discover the truth in pursuit of the truth. Hopefully you discover it ,quite often you don't. But I think that there's a tendency for people who develop kooky views on one subject to have kooky views on all kinds of other stuff. Now if you have a quote unquote kooky-view kooky-views on race right. But They're based in fact then. Yeah that's that's a good thing right. You want you want to know the truth and so forth. But the issue is I've noticed people have views on other things sometimes that are just so bizarre that I honestly just dont them associated with IE.

Patrick Casey: [00:25:52] If you're if you're sharing conspiracy videos about conspiracy theories talking [00:25:57] about how America was founded by satanists and you know it's run by transgender, I had one person in IE. who's no longer in IE, It hasn't been for a while, trying to convince me that the everyone you see on TV, all the politicians, all the supermodels, are all trannies, all trannies and if you look at you know the jaw lines and their look at their facial features then you can totally detect that they're trannies and yeah it's a whole rabbit hole to go down. [28.3] So if you I'm not going to kick you out for you know having shall we say unorthodox views on some of these subjects but I'd rather you just don't talk about them within an IE context that lets you know the person like really interested. I don't wanna see that stuff on the servers guys. It's OK to explore and it's OK to explore an idea without believing in it. That's that's a botched paraphrase of an Aristotle quote but I totally believe that. I'm willing to hear out any obscure thing but yeah Mr. Taylor said it's good to be only want to be a kook on one subject because if you have really outlandish views on race and you also believe America is run by Satanists or America is run by trannies or something else like no matter it doesn't matter how legitimate your views on race are, they're just going to be they're gonna say, "Oh look at this guy or look at this organization that promotes all this other wacky stuff too," right. And I think it's important for everyone to keep in mind that you have to be very critical of things on the internet through YouTube, through podcasts and articles. There's so much information out there. It's never been easier to make a claim for something than it is now to make a case for something. You can make a case for anything. Right there people that make convincing cases for you know aliens being responsible for the pyramids or whatever and I think that's actually one of the least one of one of the lesser, one of the least outlandish conspiracy theories as far as conspiracy theories are concerned. I can't have that stuff on IE servers, you can pursue that on your own.

Patrick Casey: [00:28:08] But again just keep in mind that you should. There's there's a big difference between saying hey you know I think it's possible that X could be true, in saying X is definitely true. You know if the trannie person the person, believing in the trannie theory I shall say (the person wasn't a trannie), if that person had told me hey I saw these videos and you kind of had me thinking you know, it's far out there I don't know if it's necessarily true but it could be possible, and I would have said wow yeah this is really far out there let me watch this video. Yeah and yeah know I don't think it's true, here's why... you could have left it at that. Because then I would have said I would have thought well this person is you know this person is just exploring something you know just just seeing if this is true.

Patrick Casey: [00:28:54] See if that's true. Sure. Sure. That's how we arrived here because we were willing to hear out ideas that everyone else said oh no you know this is this is totally false. Right. I'm we've we've all experienced that when you try talking to some people you see the stoplight go up in their eyes, the stop sign rather and then they're just like I'm I will go no further ... you know there are many reasons for why people do that. Some people just aren't smart. Other people are bound by conformity. They're scared to wade into the unknown waters of you know of off-limits intellectual inquiry. That's that's all that it is. But you know then so again it's one thing to kind of consider these things and talk about them on your right place not on IE servers and again consider them. But once you start saying this outlandish idea is definitely true. Well you know you better hope it actually is because otherwise you're just making yourself a little [audible] I'm not going to get into which conspiracy theories or whatever but just kind of keep in mind like the more outlandish stuff, you should know what that is. It doesn't have you know you can you can talk about that on other servers and plenty of other places on the Internet to discuss this. [00:30:08] So the reptilian stuff would be a good example of that. If you have gotten convinced by watching somebody YouTube channels that our elites are shapeshifting reptiles I'd rather not know about it. To be perfectly honest. But I definitely don't want to see you posting on it about that stuff our server. [16.0]

Patrick Casey: [00:30:28] And when it comes to exploring other ideas too any ideology that ... or any school of inquiry that involves violent revolution is like its kind of its main thing is something I don't want discussed on our the servers. For even more obvious reasons. Propertarianism is a good example. For whatever reason that obscure Internet philosophy has made a resurgence recently. Look I get that Kurke makes points here and there but given that it's just so inextricably linked to violent revolution and he's like "Oh here are these you know here are these power grids... You know here are the weaknesses in the electorate the US electrical gri" like I don't want anyone discussing any of that on the server. So some of these philosophies that are just like part and parcel of violent revolution yeah if we're discussing that on our servers and someone finds out about it you know it's I just don't want that to be the case. [00:31:22] So shapeshifting reptile so yeah that is the reptilian conspiracy theory which for the record I don't believe in. [7.9] I was using that as an example of one of these outlandish conspiracy theories that you read on the Internet. If you want to have a laugh and look into it a little bit look into David Ike but please keep in mind that you know that's a funny one and I've talked about that one with friends who are really the conspiracy theories. I was like look I have no way of really knowing if they are I can't disprove that there are no shapeshifting lizard men somewhere in the universe. However that claim is so out of line with all of the evidence that we have both rationally and empirically that I would need to physically see one of them in person in order to believe it. Maybe there's some other ways I could be led to believe it but it's not gonna be YouTube videos or more blogs. David is the guy who's known for that. I think he's been on Red ICe this shouldn't be too surprising but. [00:32:22] Anyways I just want to keep in mind that you know we do have a very, we have a message that is out of line with the norm-- that is out of line with what people in polite society believe, generally speaking with some exceptions obviously. [18.1] And for that reason we don't want to get too far out there on other subjects too because that's just going to ensure that we stay forever in the fringe. Now at the same time if you want to tell people not to explore certain ideas but you just got to keep in mind that our servers are not the place to do that.

Patrick Casey: [00:33:05] Moving along, I want to talk to you guys about America. I want you defend America because the idea of America as a, I mean the idea of America is kind of up for debate at this point there is a battle to define America. I mean whoever has what was going to say whoever has the successful definition wins. But I think the more accurate way of looking at it is whoever wins is going to have a successful definition. It's ultimately an issue of power relations whoever has power gets to say well America's about this. Well you know back in the day people in power wanted to preserve a white society. What do they say America was about well they said it was about? you know a lot of a lot of things but for white predominantly. Well a new elite took over after World War Two perhaps a little before that and they sort of redefining America right.

Patrick Casey: [00:34:01] America to so many people is civil rights and civil rights. And you know before Martin Luther King well let's not talk about that. Even conservatives see things the same way. And that is you know that's that's it's unfortunate. It's something we do need to push back against but we shouldn't accept the other side's framing on our country. We should you know particularly people whose ancestors go back to the Mayflower or you know the old WASP stock. Now I am from the Ellis Island stock. My ancestors came over you know early about mid 19th century Yeah. And you know they they went through a hard time right. It wasn't easy, it wasn't easy. And you know my family eventually worked their way up and most everyone on both sides of my family were pretty successful. So I feel an attachment to this country for that reason and for other reasons. And again if your ancestors came over and like you know to uninhabited wilderness and carved it you guys were like the first people here you should be the ones even more adamantly defending America's existence and identity than me. But all of us as white people certainly have a claim to America.

Patrick Casey: [00:35:17] Now the Left and you know fake right have redefined America to mean you know open borders right. You know there's no no restricting immigration at all. If you listen to some of them tranny bathrooms, and you know diversity, tolerance, inclusion and multiculturalism all this mishmash of just garbage ... garbage That is designed to reduce this country to the level of the Third World because the elites obviously won't have to worry about that. But the point with all of this is that we should not accept that as a definition of America. White nationalists and other types that are focused on white identity have historically done that. They've said America is dead America exists just genocide white people now. And I would say well America is not dead at all. If this thing that you saw was so bad meaning the American ... meaning America basically was dead well it wouldn't be an issue. No. America is totally going strong. You know maybe there's be a recession...I don't know. ..who knows maybe it will be. I think there's going to be any kind of like huge economic collapse that destroys the country anytime soon. So yeah I mean America's the system works for better or for worse. And I think largely for worse for us. So expecting some kind of collapse to come sometime soon while I guess is possible...I'm not counting on it. But the point with all of this is that we shouldn't we shouldn't conflate issues with America's ruling class and a government at this point in time with America itself. Right. [00:36:51] You shouldn't be a nationalist who hates your country. That's just really goofy. You shouldn't be I get identitarian who hates your country. But at this point in time if you don't take issue with the corrupt globalist ruling class that is running this country into the ground then there's something wrong with right. But we obviously are all on the same page. there is I don't need to preach to the choir. [17.7]

Patrick Casey: [00:37:10] However I don't want to see people in this organization and I don't see it, I only see it from you know some people on the fringe-right talking about how America is dead. How you shouldn't wave the flag. The flag belongs to them...America's patriotism for America means promoting tranny [bathrooms]. Its not the case gusy. If that the case if it was was over and everyone in America but US believed that America was about mass immigration and trannie bathrooms then Trump wouldn't be President but he is Pesident. That is because our people the descendants of a real Americans right...heritage Americans, heirloom Americans as some would call ...you Know they see these multigenerational white people in America. Our people basically have ...in general...rejected that much of that definition of America. So we should do that right when the Left says America is about diversity, tolerance, and inclusion, or open borders. Well we just have ... look we have so much on our side all of that. They're actually wrong about that and that is why we shouldn't give it up. We shouldn't give it up for that reason alone. They are lying. They are whitewashing history. They are rewriting histor. They're trying to gaslight our people into believing that America is about. Yeah. Again [inaudible] all of this. All of his left wing degeneracy. Well guess what? t Isn't about that. And if you say that you're a nationalist, you say that your identity hearing and you say yes America is about all [of that] it's always been about ... no it hasn't. No it hasn't. And again things have taken a turn for the worse since World War Two but guess what? That's what we're trying to fight back against. That's what a lot of white people were trying to push back against even if they don't refer to themselves as identitarians. No one wants open borders except for lunatics on the Keft.

Patrick Casey: [00:39:00] You had to put up a vote today for white people you know "do you want to become a minority in this country? Guys that would not pass. Most white people don't do not want that. But obviously there's never gonna be a plebiscite on something phrased that way because it's so obviously undesirable. But America'history is ours. America's identity is ours. We are Americans. [00:39:27] And without us there cannot be an America that is what we have to be about as identitarians in this country. We have to point out that America's identity is under threat by globalism. America's identity is going to be erased and America will be no more. As the result of mass immigration in particular there's certainly other factors are at play as well. [21.1] And that is why we should defend America. We shouldn't give it up and I hope you all can understand where I'm coming from. There's also a lot of strategic merit in pointing this out right.

Patrick Casey: [00:40:04] A lot of people...a Lot of white people...their Appreciation for America is something that is rooted in kind of an unconscious sense of racial identity. They wouldn't put it in those terms right. It's implicitly white. But there are a lot of people who at this point in time don't terribly relate to the word white. They might recognize that they're white. But you know it's not a lot of them. It's never been a huge factor in their life but it's quickly becoming one. It absolutely is.

Patrick Casey: [00:40:30] You know white identity has existed in this country in a way that it is different than how it exists exist now and how it will exist in the future. White identity as existing in the minority in this country and we're pretty close to that happening, it's going to happen. It's not going to be the end of the world. That is something different than white identity as the majority. Identity is defined by...you discover your identity by bumping up against something else. Your personal identity in terms of who you are as as a being, as a conscious lifeform, is largely you find out what you are by finding out what you're not. You walk into a wall you find out OK this is something different than me that didn't feel good. You bump up against stuff that isn't you and that is how identity works in the middle political, civilizational, racial context as well. So in the past there was a lot of identity based on OK we're not these African slaves were not these Native Americans and sure there were some issues between WASPSs and the Catholics coming in. If anything that just is more evidence of multiculturalism doesn't work. You know there are a lot of issues from multiculturalism for white people. Absolutely. But obviously those were able to go away as people assimilated and so forth and assimilated in a way that whites and blacks never will. That's probably even...

Patrick Casey: [00:41:54] But yeah I just I just want you all to kind of have that perspective on America. You know we can disagree here and there but I just think it's really lame to say well we're America is dead so we're just going to...you know... We're going to exit. We're going to exit the system. [00:42:09] We're going to carve out an Ethno-State somewhere else. Viable option. I'm not against it, not against is. [9.1] But here is a few things to keep in mind with regard to the ethno state argument. [00:42:26] If a white ethnicity were to sprout up somewhere that would be immediately seen as the single biggest threat to globalist hegemony. [9.4] That would immediately be seen as a greater threat than Russia, Iran, India. Russia Iran those those are the big bogeymen generally. And that's precisely because such a state would be fundamentally revolt against the kinds of ideas and values that are propagated by our ruling class as a means of controlling the masses. Now what would happen if that state came up overnight. It would probably get bombed by NATO and America. That is That is my perspective on things. I think that whatever happens in America is going to determine the fate of the West. You absolutely will. This is a country of unprecedented wealth, power, and might. And to believe that we can just carve out some little place elsewhere is at this point in time very foolish. Now if America shows signs of Balkanization. I think there's some kind of secession could be an option but it is going to happen if we're going to be honest on regional lines. It's going to happen along regional lines rather than explicitly racial but like the scism overall that in this country it will be along implicitly racial lines. I wrote an article for Red Ice back in 2016 that the more I look back on is totally twas totally apt.. It was more apt than that I knew back then. The title was "Implicit race war". I was not advocating an implicit race, I was describing what's happening in the country. It's important to keep that in mind right now if you're only consuming white identity podcasts and videos and all that stuff. I think people sometimes just think about race a little too much right. Only seeing things through the race lens. Now obviously race is very important. We don't want to whited out and a country where most people are like us. Yeah sure we can all agree on that. But it's important to keep in mind that this scism that is happening in this country. This divide is not white versus not white. It isn't. it Isn't at all. I don't think it's ever going to become that.

Patrick Casey: [00:44:48] However the implicit race war comes in...that that term refers to what's happening because the country is fracturing along implicit rather implicitly racial rather than explicitly racial lines right. It's basically red team and blue team. And I can conceive of what we're doing in identitarianism as I can see what we're doing an identitarianism as being all the red or the red team. For us to say no we're a third faction we're just all about white identity we're not right or left. I think that's going to basically be sitting on the sidelines of history. I do think this country, the country is undeniably polarizing to such an immense extent. And I think the only way for us to get out of clown world is to defeat leftism, globalism, the bankers, all of that .. is For the red team under the right leadership (very important caveat) to dominate the blue team. That's what needs to happen. That's why we all supported Trump right now obviously there are issues with Trump. We'll see what he does. But the point I'm trying to make here is that red needs to crush blue. We need to see ourselves as part of red because we are. we Are.

Patrick Casey: [00:46:02] There's a reason why all the people who are sympathetic to us or on the right there are tons of like Bernie bro's or you know DSA types who are like you know sympathetic but they don't totally agree. They would have to. They're so fundamentally opposed to what we're about. [00:46:17] Right. I mean I can go talk to some goofy Reaganite conservative at CPAC and he'll tell me why he's wrong and he'll say he'll ... fight for my right to say these opinions he disagrees with. Sure whatever. I could go to a DSA person and tell them what I'm about. And you know maybe they get on the phone and call up some you know hooligans to come try to beat me up. Right. So it's very different. However we need to have a culture that isn't cartoonishly right wing. Right. Does it all need to be loud and angry and "we love war and jingoism" no. We need to be able to recruit from both the right and the left even though we are ultimately on the right. That's the way I see this. [41.1]

Patrick Casey: [00:47:00] And that is I think that's one of the good things about the term [00:47:03] identitarianism because it is something that isn't inherently right or left wing. However I think the term nationalist is really good too and that might be the better term to use kind of when you're interfacing with the Trump sphere and you're trying to tell them what you're about. The term identitarian is good. It's a little more on the intellectual side. There's a time and place for that as well. [19.8] Too. But so I mean yeah we have Bernie Bro's in here absolutely I'm not saying we shouldn't try to recruit them but it's not as if you know once....we should be open minded and we are...open minded economically. To be right wing does not mean you have to support free markets above all else. You can you, the governments in Europe that combines social conservatism with economic economically left wing policies. They're still right wing as far as I'm concerned they're still on the right. The Left knows that they're on the right which is why they're always freaking out about Poland and Hungary all bastions as of right wing whatever. So just you know just because they have left wing social policies that I think is pretty good for those countries doesn't make them left wing.

Patrick Casey: [00:48:12] So similarly if people in this organization you know favorite kind of Bernie bro economic stuff...hopefully not the open borders element to all of that then. Yeah. And. [00:48:26] You know I think you can still do that and be obviously be an identitarian and be a nationalist right. Because nationalism is in you know the furthest right ideology by any means. [10.0] The fact the first left wing movements were essentially nationalist right. The French revolutionaries were nationalists. France for the French, "for the people". "For the people" is basically the cry of leftism right of democracy. Of Any kind of democratic government and it is "of the people for the people", that marks a dramatic shift from the kind of divine right to rule that defined the ancient regime. The monarchies of Europe. I fear people might take issue with me referring to Louis the 16th as part of the ancient regime. Not far into the monarchy stuff so forgive me if that's the case but it's kind of important to keep these things in mind. But to recap we are on the right. We have allies on the right. If these people aren't publicly speaking up for us it's because they can't right. [00:49:30] I know Tucker Carlson has watched Red Ice and liked Red Ice. [2.5] I know...I've met Breitbart journalists...I've had one Breitbart journalists who told me she was a huge IE fan girl. There a lot of these people out there guys. But you know if you if it doesn't seem like it again it's because these people have jobs they can't go tweeting "Oh I love IE I love this" you know and so forth.

Patrick Casey: [00:49:53] But yeah that's basically..that's Basically the gist of what I wanted to say toguys I want to defend America. Americans is ours. We're not ceding America to the other side. If this a secession ever becomes some kind of viable political strategy then sure but we're not nearly at that point. So kind of staking ourselves out for that it's not going to get us anywhere. Moreover we need to have allies on the right. We shouldn't see ourselves as this thing that's separate from right and left but at the same time we should absolutely be against the establishment right against the GOP. Or at least the bad people in the GOP. [00:50:30] Against TPUSA and so far as they support things that we dislike and there and they're grifters and whatever else. [7.9] I'll be honest to the CPAC lineup this year is atrocious. [00:50:41] I think Nick Fuentes pointed out on Twitter that they have you know they've got like three panels on Israel and one on immigration. That's absolutely something that they should be called out for and I'm going to do it. We're going to do it. But yeah we just have to be thinking along these lines we don't want us to get caught up in fantasies and excessive theorizing about oh here's why we should support this. [25.3]

Patrick Casey: [00:51:11] That's that's basically all I have for you tonight. So I sign up for the [LOPF] conference. If you want to donate to the sponsorship fund we're still doing that. If you want to receive sponsorship for the conference that reach up to Matt. But otherwise we'll go to questions comments and concerns as usual.

Patrick Casey: [00:51:29] Now for the the Q and A. When you think of using the term "revolutionary conservative" in the context of perspective political campaigns? I personally think it's a great label. I think there's someone who already uses that who is a bit out there.

Conway - OK: [00:51:56] Hey Patrick its Conway can I make some comments on our action?

Patrick Casey: [00:52:03] Sure let me answer this question first. OK. Revolutionary conservative is.. I mean I like it. I don't think that's really the best for what we're doing outside of an intellectual context. [00:52:14] Augustus Invictus who is an interesting character will say that ...I think that's his website. "The revolutionary conservative" I think that's his that's his brand. I don't want be associated with it given his you know goat sacrificing and blood drinking. Nice guy for what it's worth but someone we don't need to be too associated with. [22.8] So the conservative revolution too Conservative revolutionary movement is pretty good too. It's not totally what we're about. That was you know I believe like it's Ernst Yunger, Devola, those types. So that's something you know it's really good for us to read.

Conway - OK: [00:53:16] I turned the sound back on and just heard silence. So I don't mean that. But anyway guys I'll post the tweet that I made. It's a big thread and we'll have all the information, the details about what happened that led up to this but I just want to stress the importance of our activism. Do you guys like it? In case you guys were maybe had questions about are we doing stuff the right way. Is this really going to work? I really feel like we just hit a big milestone for IE in that. We went out there with a specific goal. The reason we did this whole thing is because the media completely ignored the fact that the driver of that car was here illegally. They completely ignored it. And this was during the government shutdown and they were on their Facebook pages. They kept running all these stories about "oh some sad bureaucrat is having to take a part time job as an Uber driver". So clearly they were just like trying to shape public opinion to be against the wall and against this fight for the border wall. But then when a resident gets killed by an illegal alien they completely ignored it. So we went out there with the specific goal to. [00:54:44] Do a provocative action that was going to get the media to cover this and find out if the guy was here illegally which he was I confirmed it through law enforcement. [11.3] I was not going to you know have that egg on our face but we went out there we did it. We got a reaction and sure enough today Channel Nine the station which is actually like this...twice they've done this...they've blurred out our name. Of course they smear us as Neo-nazis and everything. But they... I was shocked. I really was. The day came out a story. Last night that confirmed that the guy was here illegally. And that just I'm just I'm really on cloud nine today when I said that because. We had a goal, went up there, we accomplished it. And you know think about it this way are our brothers over in Europe and in G.I. when they did Defend the Alps last year. They were so successful that they got the French government to respond to their actions and and not just respond but take action. I believe they were protesting like a weak spot in the French-Italian border in the Alps. And they they got the French government to beef up security up there. You know it's all they've been doing things for a long, long time but it's just a matter of time before our actions result in state governments and the federal governments not just responding to them but taking the action that that we're bringing attention to. So anyway I don't want to take up any more of your guys this time. Just wanted to let you guys know about that.

Patrick Casey: [00:56:40] Thank you Carl. Yeah those are great action definitely.

Patrick Casey: [00:56:44] Next, Lauren [inaudible] It set us on the Chicago conference speeches. Those are being edited as we speak.

Patrick Casey: [00:56:49] @V Balboa: is it too late to join the guys at CPAC.

Patrick Casey: [00:56:53] Absolutely not. Love to have you show me a message and I'll get you in the server.

Patrick Casey: [00:57:00] E cartev: I apologize if I mispronounced that. "Autistic question with a 'v', nice server admin a person or generic account held by multiple people"?

Patrick Casey: [00:57:08] He's actually a person if you could believe it. I know the precision with which he moderates the server is machine-like but he he exists. I have met him. He's a good guy. Like.

Patrick Casey: [00:57:24] @Christian of the desert: "I know the Guardian Program and [inaudible] sunset until after the conference but will the jackets have is epaulets?"

Patrick Casey: [00:57:34] I actually don't even know what that means. I..that's what I thought it was....Epaulets...learned a new word today. haven't gotten that far on to the Guardian Program to figure out whether or not the jacket above epaulets but I'll get back to you.

Patrick Casey: [00:57:55] @Godrick: take more of a comment rather than a question. "Stefan Molyneux recommends you to disown leftists including family".

Patrick Casey: [00:58:01] Yeah he does.

Patrick Casey: [00:58:01] @Godrick: He ran a cult in the past.

Patrick Casey: [00:58:03] He sure did.

Patrick Casey: [00:58:05] @Godrick: That required you to abandon your family and recently instructed his followers to cut people out of your life. They wear Nike shoes. Are members of IE encouraged not to follow his advice?

Patrick Casey: [00:58:16] Yeah I would say you know there's a certain point at which people's political views just become insane. Maybe that's the point...like If your family's like oh we should kill all white people should be put into camps or you. Yeah maybe it just becomes more of a personality issue than the politics. Don't in relationships over politics unless the people are toxic. But then again the issue there is toxicity. I've got plenty of liberals in my family and they haven't disowned me so I have no reason to disown them. I actually would like to for after we win for it things to be less politicized. I think most people shouldn't really have much to do with the affairs of its.. a lot of it's kind of a manufactured identity thing right. Social media, mainstream media promotes tribalism along racial and ideological lines. And it's really sad to see people ending their friendships over that.

Patrick Casey: [00:59:19] Yes, Stefan Molyneux did run a cult. Not sure if the web site's still up but it was very it was really something. I'm not sure who had it but if you'd read the website and it seemed like fairly objective. And then it had like profiles of people who were part of the defiling movement or basically, run by Stefan Molyneux and it [26.0] would be like "Oh gee look here's John. John does a free Fourth year College student so it's so" and then it would launch into like you know just really terrible personal diatribes against these people like you know "John tried to become a man but unfortunately like his is you know growing up without a father made him a loser. Now he can't find a girlfriend". Like you look like you're like reading testimonials for this club and then it's just I don't know if Stefan Molyneux writing this stuff was pretty terrible. But if if any of that still out there I'd recommend you.

[01:00:17] Pretty bizarre. [01:00:19] But you know Stefan Molyneux who has alluded to childhood trauma so who knows what kind of circumstances he was subjected to that led him to [8.4] that kind of weirdness. But I think he's been a net positive for us politically. So on that he's pretty good. Yeah. You should be. Should be very you should be very careful when he uses.

[01:00:52] [inaudible].

[01:01:09] I was really good too because once you're reading through that you're kind of what kind of arguments is going to make in favor of diversity he makes in this 40 page academic study. He makes the food argument, makes The mall restaurants argument. It's there's some line in there about like "how could we how could we you know forget the exquisite cuisine" that ... it's Just like this is supposed to be reading in academic studies like defending, not defending diversity was dealing with diversity. They still can't get. They still couldn't find anything else to use. Now I know that everything he writes in there it doesn't back up what we have to say right. I think is what he says is like all the long term like the benefits of diversity you're going to really boy they're really going to make things great which which is fantasy.

Patrick Casey: [01:01:54] But still you know they still call him a white supremacist ... so I guess he's helped out our side someone great. [7.5]

Patrick Casey: [01:02:02] @Niko the Great: Is it worth slogans that have become trendy in future poster designs? For example, for instance having posters that say it's "OK to be white" with our logo.

Patrick Casey: [01:02:10] I would say we don't use that. Here's why. The brilliance of it's "OK to be white" was that it was not associated with any organization that could be used to "oh hate group puts up this organization" and in fact people on /pol/ were rightfully upset with like TWP and others put out "it's OK to be white" posters with their name on it. Totally defeated the purpose because the purpose right is it's just a message. There's no there's no messenger that can be subject to character assassination. In fact there were some non-white people who were putting up these posters and saw the pictures of the black and brown hands putting these up on 4chan which was pretty awesome. So is it worth. I mean we can we. That's just one example. I'm not against capitalizing on trendy posters in the future. We definitely want to have our main flyers be our own stuff. But if there's ever. If there ever a potential to do that then sure.

Patrick Casey: [01:03:17] @No word: favorite video game?

Patrick Casey: [01:03:20] That is a good question. You don't see a lot of people who are trying to get me to play minecraft. I've never played minecraft once so I don't think I ever will. So if this if that's where this was leading I'm sorry I'm paranoid is about people. Asking you to play. I don't know why it's been a thing the past few weeks [inaudible]. Favorite video game of all time? I don't know what to say you know there've been games I enjoyed credit in the past but I'm not huge on videogames at this point. So, I'll just say final fantasy 7 so I give you something. You know that's kind of the the main final fantasy I'm a I'm a total casual comes.

Patrick Casey: [01:04:03] @Freiheit: NorCal is legit AF but our member count ever increasing, increases slowly...what is getting the honeys in your area.

Patrick Casey: [01:04:14] I don't know if you meant to say homies or he meant honeys. Are you referring to female members exclusively Freiheit? We haven't had...most of the members coming into my area have been have been male. We have had a few female members. You just have to keep doing activism. Keep putting yourself out there that's really the only way to do it. Honestly you can network with other groups. By that I mean know TPUSA, College Republicans, MAGA meet ups even get that way. Got on subreddits where our people...people like ws would you frequent. But you know most people come in through activism.

Patrick Casey: [01:05:01] @Yoharn. Should we start a NAZBOL alliance with African-Americans to get rid of the others by favoring nationalizing universities.

Patrick Casey: [01:05:09] I don't think that's us. I mean you're probably probably somewhat kidding here. So but I tell you I don't think that's that's a legitimate strategy. And in fact I think I think the fact that you use the term NAZBOL is probably a giveaway that you are taking careless here.

Patrick Casey: [01:05:28] @Dixie boy. Do you have red dead redemption 2? Do you LARP as a cowboy?

Patrick Casey: [01:05:31] Familiar With those games. They were kind of cool but I haven't played. Either of them. Actually I think I'm basically the point in my life where I don't know if I'm going to play any new video. If I was at someone's house they offered me a controller sure maybe a little bit but I don't have any systems. I had a laptop that doesn't have a graphics card I can play. I think I've looked it up and I can play some games at like the lowest quality but I'll be honest I don't think video games are terribly satisfying. And in fact you know there's evidence that they you know the kind of shorts...you know the way they work with dopamine and your brain's. reward system is that they might be a little bit more concerning than you think. It's basically tricking your brain into thinking that it's accomplished something but you actually haven't. Now if you're playing for fun here they're sure that's fine. But. A lot of people who spend too much time in front of a computer it's still something I have struggled with and. The fact that I do this for a living really makes it I have to be in front of the screen for much of the day. But in general when it comes to thinking about how I'm going to spend my free time I am thinking about how I can do things away from a screen. So.

Patrick Casey: [01:06:47] @Donald Regan any advice for college Republican infiltration?

Patrick Casey: [01:06:50] You get in there find out the hard core Trump supporters are. Find out what videos they watch maybe recommend the Molyneux. Don't know doxx yourself ...no need to...proceed carefully but. Yeah I mean if you get involved with college Republicans maybe you can convince them to do demonstrations against immigration. Mass immigration on campus. Illegal immigration. That could be pretty good too. I mean ...you know what we do is good. It's definitely a niche thing. I'd like to see people in the MAGA community doing more activism. That's why I tweeted out like when you know amidst all of this platforming censorship that's going on. "Where are these mass rallies in support of free speech" against this stuff. I don't see it happening. I don't see it happening. Ann Coulter, Tucker Carlson all of these people have massive followings like Cernovich, Casandra Fairbanks and you know I want these people to be planning massive rallies that people go to. That I can go to because if I thought I planned a rally like this and people would show up..I Would totally do it. We'll see how things go later this year.
