

AIM Pathways

Welcome to American Identity Movement! Thank you for joining us and committing your actions to your values.

Our organizational purpose is to grow a metapolitical movement capable of leveraging peaceful, ethical political and institutional reform in order to save our civilization and identity before demographics crush us forever. The vehicle to grow any mass movement is peaceful, public action to disrupt the current metapolitics and unify supporters. Peaceful activism is both a necessary and thrilling endeavor. At the present time however, public association with our values may be cause for severe social repercussions and ostracization.

In our organization, there are opportunities for everyone to work towards our goals. For the above reasoning, it is appropriate that you, the Member, are prepared to decide on and adhere to your role in this grand cultural campaign. While the great majority of identitarian activists have never faced 'exposure', and we will continue to do our best to protect personal information, it is important to note that we cannot thoroughly guarantee the complete anonymity of everyone who participates in activism in an age of growing scrutiny, social polarization, and technological warfare against us.

Hence, there are two general roles available to all Members of AIM: Activist and Support.

Activist

As an Activist, you are prepared to study the proper purpose, theory, and applications of peaceful activism. You are an exemplar and cultural warrior for our civilization and identity engaged in defiant acts against the ruling ideology of mass immigration and globalism.

Shoulder to shoulder with other men and women in our endeavor, you are prepared to confidently show your face in demonstrations and you seek to symbolically isolate the events and iconography of our cultural foes in your Chapter and around the country when called upon.

As an activist, you do more than merely adhere to the rules and standards of the organization. You will rightfully protect your personal information online, but due to the heightened scrutiny against us, you hereby accept that indefinite anonymity is not a guarantee once you visibly participate in this movement. You thus accept that every action you take, inside or out of AIM, reflects upon our entire membership including every current, past, and future member. Activists thoroughly embody our organization.

Our activists therefore value inspiration and galvanization over transgression, outreach over insularity, creativity over lethargy, and civility and nuance over trenchant behavior.

For reasons above, you also exercise preparedness in your life as an activist. In the event you are ever 'exposed', you will find strength in resilience.

Activist Resilience

With a degree of preparation, the 'exposure' of an activist is not a social death sentence.

Of course, all Members should rightfully do their best to protect personal information. This can begin with staying off social media with any connection to your name or face, disassociating current online usernames with personal information or past usernames, removing information from online personal indexing sites, refraining from offering personal information in online communications, and more.

However, it is still possible for identitarian activists to be 'exposed' in other manners, such as being recognized by non-sympathetic acquaintances.

Thus, this preparation is a call to immediate action to develop personal anti-fragility, resilience, and a life of abundance which will allow the activist to persist indefinitely in the culture war.

- Financial Resilience: There are an abundance of financial success resources available. Your goal, both as an activist and as a responsible individual, is to become as financially independent as possible.
  - Pay off and eliminate non-mortgage debt!
  - Budget your monthly expenses and income and hold to them!
  - Create investment and savings goals. Attain an emergency fund to cover six months of your living expenses!

- Consider employment in states where it is illegal to terminate an employee for political activity outside of the workplace or find other antifragile employment if possible!
  - Create multiple or passive streams of income through a side hustle that could grow into a primary endeavor, online jobs, consultancies, or more.
  - Veterans should take advantage of VA disability. Do not make the mistake of thinking your past service-connected injuries will not plague you later in life and hurt your ability to work and earn money. You've served our country, so do not be "too proud" to take compensation that you have earned!
  - Verify that you are included in the wills of loved ones. You can love and respect your family and respectfully seek to inherit your familial wealth.
- Social Resilience: Your goal is to be an attractive person who brings value to society through confidence, authenticity, and integrity. In the event of 'exposure', you can activate your networks and relationships, be an exemplar for our movement, and gain sympathy and support from people who know you through the weight of your unimpeachable reputation.
    - Build rapport with your closest loved ones. It is helpful for your closest loved ones to have a basic understanding of your values and thus "know the score" in the event of 'exposure.' Be reliable and trustworthy with them, and also respect their boundaries without forcing their own identitarian awakening. If your exposure completely surprises them, it will be relatively more difficult for them to accept you.
    - Build relationships in our movement. We are a nationwide social organization, after all. With strong friendships with other members and activists, it is very possible to greatly mitigate the harshest consequences of an 'exposure' by relying on your AIM network for new employment and residence.
    - Build social capital and community involvement as much as possible. Be a good member of your community, and treat others regardless of background with respect. You can never treat others with too much civility.

Now, imagine a theoretical scenario in which your name is emblazoned across a Huffington Post article in connection to our organization, as has happened to our activists before! Would you rather have many elements of the above checklists, such as a safety fund of thousands of dollars, a highly supportive friend group, secure sources of income, actualized and prepared, or not?

As an activist, it is your responsibility to take such a scenario, although unlikely, with some degree of seriousness. Assuming you are now underway in the preparations above, let's discuss what you should do in the unlikely but possible event of 'exposure.'

First, it's happened. You've been exposed as an activist for a group some call a white supremacist organization. It's time to turn off all of your notifications and clean up any social media accounts or any revealing activity online you have control over to prevent more exposure. Move quickly.

Second, it's time to log off, perhaps turn off your data connection on your phone, and turn off your home internet. Keep one way for trusted friends and AIM representatives to contact you. Find some trusted friends or loved ones who know the score, or Members of AIM, and go on a brief vacation as early as possible.

Third, never talk to journalists! Leftist journalists love to 'reach out for comment' in this initial time period. While it may be tempting to engage, doing so is never beneficial for the activist. Journalists mechanize their ethical obligation to request comment into a vehicle to add content and keep the story of your exposure alive. Do your best to deprive the story of any further developments and it will die more quickly.

Fourth, document and archive everything said about or done to you online and elsewhere upon your return. Organize and save this information securely in the event you are faced with repercussions.

Fifth, do not quit work or school. This may be seen as an admission of wrongdoing, legally and socially. Remain confident, and if you are a respectful student and employee who refrained from transgression and did not bring politics into the workplace, it may be very difficult for others to take action against you. Hold out, and you may be pleasantly surprised.

Sixth, contact a local attorney if you face consequences or ongoing harassment. Do not expect AIM to hold your hand through this process. Many quality attorneys offer free, confidential consultations, and you should inquire along the lines of cyberstalking, targeted harassment, tortious interference in a business relationship, tortious interference in a business contract, and more depending on your situation and what is perpetrated against you. You are a peaceful political activist who engaged in constitutionally protected behavior, and did nothing wrong. Many of our cultural enemies want to see the US government abolished and endorse street violence.

Seventh, transition to your network and do not leave AIM. Call upon the preparation and resources from the above lists which you have carefully readied. In the peak of an exposure, thoughts of leaving this cause behind are likely to cross your mind. This is what our social foes intend. Our social situation will not change until we hold true and reject their shaming tactics, and you will be able to find the strength to do so if you follow the above recommendations and assume certain risks from the start. Life will return to a new normal, and you can very well become a much stronger individual and activist as a result of this process.

Support

If you are not interested in activism or cannot accept the risks above, there are many other valuable and necessary roles in our organization to participate in.

However, you hereby accept that the ultimate, necessary manifestation of this movement is our peaceful, public activism. Without it, we cannot create enduring, cultural change. Without our activists, we are not a true movement and “movement” is in our name.

Supporters then undergird the organization and provide a deep, worthwhile, nationwide community. As a Supporter, you are a critically important AIM Member and you recognize your significance far outweighs that of an anonymous donor or ideological ally because you are engaged as thoroughly as you can be.

Supporters accept that the best way to grow our organization is through financial contributions. Naturally, we cannot grow without financial resources, and if you have the means, you should participate in the Patrons Program, which starts at an additional $50/mo beyond regular dues. There are even benefits, including access to private meetings, Patrons merch, and private events at national gatherings such as AIM 2019!

There is no shame in admitting that financial resources talk, and it is every Member’s duty to become financially successful and plentiful for yourself, your family, your children, your ancestors, and this movement.

If you are not able to yet give beyond regular membership dues, there are a number of other volunteer groups within the organization which are critical and yet do not require public activism engagement. What are your skills, hobbies, and resources?

- Would you be willing to spend a few hours a week to train and interview applicants to AIM?
- Would you be willing to spend a few hours a week to help build and defend the AIM Wikipedia project?
- Do you have graphic design skills that could be used for our propaganda, video editing skills for our activism media, or audio editing skills to be used for our podcast?
- Do you have rhetorical skills that could be put to use in our press response team or statement writing for our website?
- Do you have technical or software development skills that could be put to use on our many, daunting technical obstacles in the age of deplatforming?
- Do you have accounting skills to help manage AIM accounting?
- Do you have legal expertise and would you be willing to consult with us from time to time?
- Do you have a few hours a week to help manage and develop AIM social media?
- Do you have a few hours a week to spend in online discussion and recruitment for AIM outside of the organization?

While everyone is free to choose their own level of involvement, we'd encourage that you match your actions to your values and find a way to deepen your involvement without compromising your place in society.

Finally, the last major way to become involved in this cause and continue to grow this organization to be covered here is through personal networking inside institutions. These endeavors should not be thought of 'infiltration', but rather as natural civic and social engagement for the ultimate benefit of European-Americans and American Identity Movement. Movement building does, in part, rely on the sympathies of certain elites.

Supporters can and should go to political party meetings and a variety of other social and professional events and organizations, maintain good relations, and dutifully work to guide the mechanics of the world to our benefit and persuade those with disproportionate influence and resources to do the same.

Finally, you adhere to and accept the reality, like the Activist, that once you break your role and engage in any form of activism, your anonymity cannot be completely guaranteed in perpetuity and you must recognize what you can offer our organization and stick to it in trust and confidence.

The clock is ticking on our demographic future. The time is choosing is now. What will it be?
